SUPPORTED BY DELTA HEALTH ALLIANCE

Early Childhood

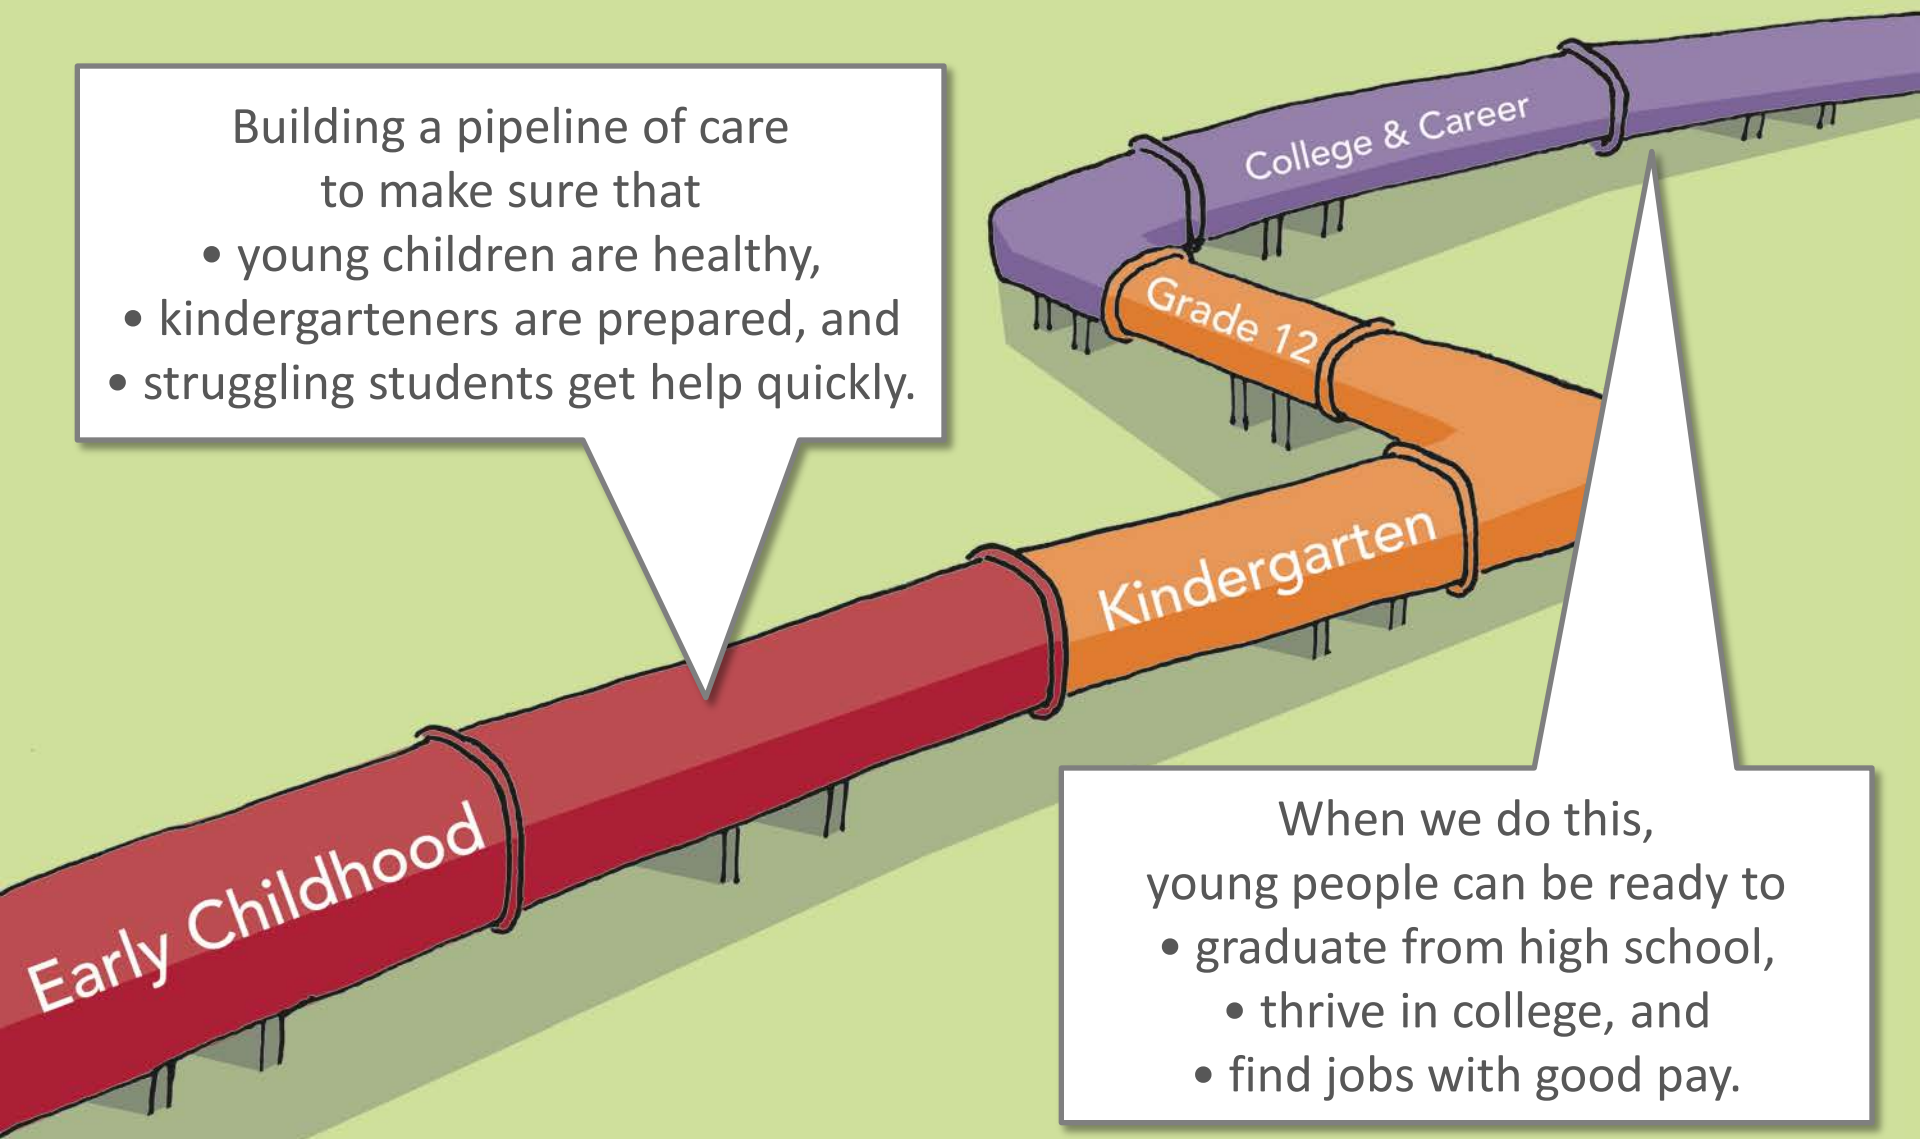

School K-12

College & Career

Building a pipeline of care to make sure that

- young children are healthy,
- kindergarteners are prepared, and
- struggling students get help quickly.

When we do this,
young people can be ready to

- graduate from high school,
- thrive in college, and
- find jobs with good pay.

The IPC pipeline is constructed through programs and services complementing and building on each other.

Tracking outcomes:
Each program will be carefully evaluated according to goals and performance measures,
to ensure its success.

Results-based accountability.

CASE MANAGEMENT AT IPC

- 1. Lead with our framework
- 2. Ensure quality data entry
- 3. Monitor program data quality
- 4. Monitor program performance
 - How much?
 - How well?
 - Is anyone better off?
- 5. Continuous improvement

1. What are the conditions or results we want for program participants? (GOALS)
2. How will we know if we are achieving the program's goals? (PERFORMANCE MEASURES)
3. How will we continue to improve the program so that we can achieve results? (ACTION ITEMS)

Determine what needs to be collected based on the program's goals and performance measures:

- Demographic and case management data (IPC Family Enrollment Form)
- Consent Form (IPC consent form)
- Performance measure data (administrative, assessment data, etc)

Determine who is responsible for administering, collecting and entering this data into system and in what frequency

DATA COLLECTION + ENTRY

Develop formal agreements with partners

- Assessment calendar with specific responsibilities, administration, and deliverable dates
- Include in legal agreements, like MOAs or MOUs

BENEFITS

- Able to move from talk to action with partners
 - What's working and needs to be scaled up?
 - What isn't working and needs to be changed?
 - Who is responsible and by when?
- Able to talk about the impact of programming at critical markers in a child's life
 - Did enrollment in IPC programming impact K-readiness results?
 - Did our out-of-school initiatives impact the 3rd grade reading proficiency?
